

Certiprep

for 2007 Microsoft® Office Certifications

Your complete assessment and test preparation tool to help employees achieve Microsoft Certified Application Specialist credentials

Certiprep for 2007 Microsoft Office Certification is the premier self-paced preparation tool for the latest Office certification program—Microsoft Certified Application Specialist. Whether employees need just a little or a lot of help gearing up for the certification exam, Certiprep 2007 is designed to accurately simulate the certification testing environment. It maps directly to certification exam objectives and employs the same “live application” technology used in the certification exams.

It's the closest thing to the certification exam besides ... well, the certification exam.

All-in-One: Seamless Integration with Certification Administration System

While Certiprep may offer the most comprehensive and authentic test experience available, it is also integrated seamlessly into the newest version of the delivery and web-based reporting systems used for the certification exams.

Certiport Centers no longer have to hassle with managing software license keys for several users because Certiport's exam-delivery engine streamlines and simplifies administration. Once installed, trainers can manage and track Certiprep license usage through www.certiport.com. In addition, Web-based reporting on the same site captures individual and group-based progress, which trainers can use to develop personalized learning plans leading to certification.
