

Microsoft® Business Certification

Turn ordinary workers into Office celebrities.

The launch of the 2007 Microsoft Office system is an exciting opportunity for businesses to become more efficient and innovative by utilizing the full features of the new release. As more businesses take advantage of the new technology, the workplace need for 2007 Office system skills is expected to grow dramatically over the next five years. The new Microsoft Business Certification meets this growing demand for the verifiable capabilities that organizations worldwide will depend on.

The advantages of a Microsoft Business certified workforce.

Hiring certified workers and developing training programs to certify your existing workforce can help you get the most out of your software investment. Studies show that a comprehensive level of skill proficiency is directly linked to an increase in on-the-job performance, regardless of the actual job function.* Individuals certified in the 2007 Microsoft Office products are able to plug into the new features and functionality to complete tasks more easily and work smarter, not harder, to be more productive.

Choose a comprehensive skills validation solution.

Install certification on site in your learning centers and start offering cost-effective, time-saving certifications as a component of your training program. When you hire a Microsoft Business Certified employee, you're getting a 2007 Office system expert—someone who knows how to get the most out of the new release and who can share this knowledge with other employees, greatly impacting your company's productivity.
